If you enjoy scenic hikes, dramatic coastal views, and authentic Southern Italy travel, the Path of the Gods hike deserves a spot on your itinerary.

While the hike is absolutely rewarding, our experience also proved that the Path of the Gods hike is more challenging than many travelers expect.[/vc_column_text][/vc_column][/vc_row][vc_row type=”in_container” full_screen_row_position=”middle” scene_position=”center” text_color=”dark” text_align=”left” overlay_strength=”0.3″ shape_divider_position=”bottom”][vc_column column_padding=”no-extra-padding” column_padding_position=”all” background_color_opacity=”1″ background_hover_color_opacity=”1″ column_shadow=”none” column_border_radius=”none” width=”1/3″ tablet_text_alignment=”default” phone_text_alignment=”default” column_border_width=”none” column_border_style=”solid”] boarded the 9:00am ferry to the town of Amalfi. During busy travel months, it is very important to buy your ferry tickets and bus connections in advance. Amalfi gets crowded quickly, especially during peak season, and transportation can fill up fast.

Once we arrived in Amalfi, we connected to the local bus heading uphill toward Bomerano, the traditional starting point for the Sentiero degli Dei hike.

Our group included Cathy, Denise, and me. Spirits were high as we began the famous Path of the Gods hike, winding through cliffs, mountain villages, and panoramic views overlooking the Mediterranean Sea. The scenery along the trail is stunning almost immediately. Around every corner, the Amalfi Coast seems to reveal another postcard-perfect view.[/vc_column_text][/vc_column][/vc_row][vc_row type=”in_container” full_screen_row_position=”middle” scene_position=”center” text_color=”dark” text_align=”left” overlay_strength=”0.3″ shape_divider_position=”bottom”][vc_column column_padding=”no-extra-padding” column_padding_position=”all” background_color_opacity=”1″ background_hover_color_opacity=”1″ column_shadow=”none” column_border_radius=”none” width=”1/1″ tablet_text_alignment=”default” phone_text_alignment=”default” column_border_width=”none” column_border_style=”solid”]

The Path of the Gods hike is famous for a reason. High above the coastline, hikers are treated to incredible views of Positano, rugged cliffs, terraced farms, and the sparkling blue waters below. It truly feels like one of the great hiking experiences in Italy.

That said, the trail is not simply a casual walk.

During our hike, Denise unfortunately misstepped and took a tumble, leaving her with a nasty bruise on her forearm. Thankfully, she proved to be a real trooper. After recovering from the fall, she continued the Path of the Gods hike with determination and finished the trail with us.[/vc_column_text][/vc_column][/vc_row][vc_row type=”in_container” full_screen_row_position=”middle” scene_position=”center” text_color=”dark” text_align=”left” overlay_strength=”0.3″ shape_divider_position=”bottom”][vc_column column_padding=”no-extra-padding” column_padding_position=”all” background_color_opacity=”1″ background_hover_color_opacity=”1″ column_shadow=”none” column_border_radius=”none” width=”1/3″ tablet_text_alignment=”default” phone_text_alignment=”default” column_border_width=”none” column_border_style=”solid”] admitted the trail was harder than they had originally expected. Uneven footing, elevation changes, rocky sections, and long downhill stretches can be tiring, especially during warm weather.
